

About Prosperous Communities

Prosperous Communities is an experienced consulting, research, and training organization dedicated to helping communities create and preserve workforce and affordable housing.

Dr. William S. Hettinger, the President of Prosperous Communities, is an internationally known expert on workforce housing solutions for resort communities and community leadership strategies.

Prosperous Communities combines academic rigor with real world knowledge and experience to devise and implement effective solutions to complex business and social problems

Our clients include cities and towns worldwide, national nonprofit organizations, small, community-based nonprofits, as well as local businesses and Fortune 500 companies.

The mission of Prosperous Communities is to help create socially and economically healthy communities.

We do this by providing consulting, research, and training to organizations and individuals working to create and preserve workforce and affordable housing and working to maintain economic vitality in the community.

Prosperous Communities offers a full range of consulting, research and training services. Our services are focused on:

- Creating and preserving workforce and affordable housing units;
- Creating and preserving a community's economic vitality;
- Providing education and training to those responsible for housing on how the housing process works and the leadership techniques that can be used to implement change in an organization or community.
